IND Gets Largest Federal Grant in the Country

The Indianapolis Airport Authority received $56.3 million in grant funding, the largest in the airport's history. The money comes from the sixth and final round of this year's Airport Improvement Program from the Federal Aviation Administration, which allocated $431.8 million in grants across the country to support sustainable airport infrastructure. The money will fund the initial construction phase of one of Indianapolis International Airport's runways, and the initial construction and electrical phase of a taxiway.
